Case Study - May 2017

Soundproof Timber Doors

Client: Live Electronic Living – Greg Catchpole

Location: Durban

History: Live Electronic Living had a client for whom they were revamping a recording studio. The studio required both acoustic treatment within the room and soundproofing of the structure, this included the need for soundproof doors.

The Solution: After consultation with the various parties involved, it was recommended that a Genesis Soundproof Timber Doors be installed in the recording studio.

Greg's comments:

"While we were installing my staff commented at how much of a difference the doors made, even before we had properly installed the seals. The doors worked very well and I've had no issues and no complaints. It's an extremely good door for its value and my client was very happy. The guys I dealt with at management level were pleased with the overall performance. The door is very well made and put together. The weight of the doors is impressive."
